

```

import java.util.Scanner;

public class SentimentAnalysis { public static void main(String[] args) { Scanner sc = new Scanner(System.in);

        System.out.println("Enter a sentence:");
        String text = sc.nextLine().toLowerCase();

        String[] positiveWords = {
            "good", "great", "excellent", "happy", "love", "awesome", "nice"
        };

        String[] negativeWords = {
            "bad", "poor", "sad", "hate", "terrible", "worst", "angry"
        };

        int positiveCount = 0;
        int negativeCount = 0;

        for (String word : positiveWords) {
            if (text.contains(word)) {
                positiveCount++;
            }
        }

        for (String word : negativeWords) {
            if (text.contains(word)) {
                negativeCount++;
            }
        }

        if (positiveCount > negativeCount) {
            System.out.println("Sentiment: Positive");
        } else if (negativeCount > positiveCount) {
            System.out.println("Sentiment: Negative"); } else {
            System.out.println("Sentiment: Neutral");
        }

        sc.close();
    }
}

```